New Cost of Living Report

New report outlining:

- The median income in the state
- Average spending on typical household expenses, like
  - Rent
  - Food
  - Utilities
  - Transportation, etc.
- What’s leftover for savings
- And what you’d need to grow key assets
Prosperity Now’s 2021 State Policy Priorities

- Ensuring public assistance programs meet their intended goals
- Providing all families with the means to save
- Creating avenues for affordable and stable housing
- Protecting individuals from predatory debt traps
Discussion – Translating Policies to Florida
What are some of your own policy priorities you’d like to advance in Florida in 2021?
Which policies connect most to your own/your organization’s 2021 priorities?
What policies do you think are the most feasible in 2021?
Longer term (beyond 2021)?
What kind of support would you need to help advance your priority policies in 2021?

Should we wait for the statute of limitations to expire or try to settle this old debt?

We have a client that has a large charge off ($212,000) from a vehicle repossession that has about 14 months before it reaches the 7 year statute of limitations. The goal is to get this client in shape to apply for a mortgage. Should we wait until it falls off her credit report or try to settle the old debt? What is the risk of us reaching out to the collector to begin negotiating to settle the debt resetting the statute of limitations? Thank you.

When it comes to both timelines, as far as I understand, but certain the credit reporting timeline, keep in mind that the clock usually doesn’t start until the day the account is reported as delinquent. Usually, that doesn’t happen until about 6 or 7 months after the missed payment that began the default.

As for acknowledging the account and restarting the reporting, I’m not going to say it doesn’t happen. Collection agencies often do. But it is illegal and can be disputed. I always understood that the only thing that could restart the reporting time
